

The EDTS Team

It took just 40 tax returns to convince Charles Johnson he wasn't a number-cruncher. The Augusta, Georgia native went in a different direction. Today, that course correction is known as EDTS, a rapidly-growing firm blazing trails in networking, security and IT services from offices in Greenville and Augusta, GA.

After earning a finance degree, Charles tried accounting before migrating to network administration where he quickly discovered his niche -- helping safeguard businesses against a plague of Internet security threats. EDTS, the company he founded in 1999, now employs 27 people—all dedicated to full service, "excuse-free" IT services.

"Our goal," says Charles, "is to help companies focus on what they do best and get out of the IT business." EDTS provides world-class managed services and IT support—with a fix-the-problem-first approach that clients appreciate. EDTS was recently named to Inc. magazine's list of the 5000 fastest growing private companies in America.

EDTS has succeeded by emphasizing solid infrastructure design and network security. Its independent, detailed audits verify all compliance standards and provide management with gap analysis of potential security deficiencies. And its engineers hold top Microsoft, Cisco and industry certifications to ensure the skills to do every job right.
